A mock-epic poem about the American Revolution featuring supernatural twists, historical icons with extraordinary powers, and action-filled battle scenes.

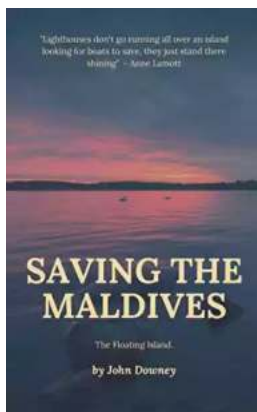

Thomas Jefferson is sent to Hell, where, guided by Dante, he meets old friends and tries to figure out which among his many mortal sins will determine his final punishment. An ailing, world-weary Mercury passes his herald's wand to Paul Revere, who saddles up for his midnight ride with the fastest horse on earth. Apollo, handicapped and traumatized by modern warfare, comes out of retirement to fire a shot that sends shock waves around the planet. The minutemen at Lexington and Concord make a desperate stand against the largest empire in history. Old Sam Whitemore, too frail to aid the beleaguered rebel militia in its darkest hour, discovers a divine farming tool and becomes the mightiest senior citizen of all time. Join the Muse for the grand narrative about the legendary heroes who built the American Republic, retold here in its entirety for the first time in rhyming verse.
